Who Threw 1st Stone — Star or Assessor?

EDITOR'S NOTE: The text of this editorial is being broadcast over Radio Station KXAR Monday and Tuesday morning at the editor's personal expense.

In daily signed editorials this past week your editor has been calling for the defeat of Hempstead County Tax Assessor Carter Sutton in Tuesday's election.

Because of the time element on an evening newspaper it would be possible for either a candidate or an editor to say something to his city audience at the last moment which would be too late to reach those on the farm.

Therefore I am broadcasting this editorial at personal expense Monday and Tuesday — so that all Hempstead County will know exactly what I am telling the people of Hope in Monday's Star.

I am aware that in the closing hours of a campaign some voters lose sight of the issue and say, "There's only one newspaper in town — and it is crucifying a man."

But then again, there's only one Tax Assessor in the county, with life-and-death control over property assessments — and if he's playing politics with the office, as we charge, then it's YOU, not Carter Sutton, who is being crucified.

This question can be resolved by showing who threw the first stone — The Star or Carter Sutton. If we can show he deliberately embarked on a campaign to juggle property assessments in order to get himself elected to a salaried office in the courthouse, then he is the one who is attacking — and we are merely defending the people... who have the constitutional right to expect property assessments to be administered fairly and without personal politics.

Your editor has been on public record for reform of Arkansas' property assessing system for 40 years, tracing back to the 1920s when he was an editor at El Dorado.

His record was recognized when Governor Cherry appointed him as one of 25 to serve on the state-wide Property Assessment Reform Committee in 1952-53. When the Committee proposed a constitutional amendment it was your editor who wrote into the original draft a provision to abolish the elective office of Tax Assessor and replace it with an appointive office to be filled by the other elective officers of the county. The state association of Tax Assessors threatened Governor Cherry and eventually he had to abandon the amendment.

Knowing that local assessment reform wasn't likely to come about while tax money could be obtained from the state, your editor engaged in two state-wide tax petitions in 1955 and 1957 — which, with court costs in a challenge to the federal government, cost him $18,000 personally.

I have put money into government seeking to improve it.

Carter Sutton is taking money out of government while seeking to destroy it.

He first ran for Hempstead County Tax Assessor in 1958, and I was informed that he was campaigning on the grounds that the people's property assessments were too high and he would treat his friends "right." He didn't say he would assess everyone in accordance with the property they owned, as required by the oath of public office — but he was debauching the Tax Assessor's post with political promises for the sake of the salary the office pays.

I ran two editorials against him and he lost that 1958 election.

After the election he stopped me on the street and said mournfully that The Star had "ruined him." I told him he knew where we stood on assessment reform and that he was deliberately attacking us on a point of good government. Mr. Sutton told me then he didn't know about our work on assessment reform.

I believed he was speaking the truth in 1958 — that he simply didn't know.

He ran again for Tax Assessor in 1960. We gave him the benefit of the doubt — and didn't oppose him.

But in his statement rejecting the proposal for a property reassessment program, last February 8, he showed that he stands in 1962 just where he stood in 1958 — except that this time he can not plead he doesn't know.

Furthermore, I have published the official figures from the courthouse to show that his two years in office have cost the taxpayers more than any Tax Assessor for the last 12 years. In the current year alone he will have put upon the taxpayers an expense $2,125 greater than for 1960, the last year before he was sworn in.

Political promises to individual taxpayers... extraordinarily high office expense — these are the marks of Cain... a man intent on destroying his brother citizens, rather than helping them as he took oath to do.

This is the Home Front we are fighting for.

In the recent past we got help from the state government. Now the state has more burdens than it can carry, and it is asking local government to do something for the common cause. If we fail, then the last recourse is the federal government — and he who pays the piper will call the tune.

If local property assessments are to be horse-traded by a political Tax Assessor then I warn you of what's ahead — a series of millage rate increases, of which there will be no end.

Much property was reassessed in 1958. If the equalization program is rejected and we have to turn to millage rate increases instead, then the property that was raised in 1958 will be cut back in value — and the first millage increase will be used to fill up that hole in revenue... with additional millage increases still to come.

You can help yourself — and your local government — by voting Carter Sutton out of office on Tuesday.

Gas Fumes Fatal to Boy at Antoine

Perry Cavanaugh Adams, aged 16, of Antoine, formerly of Washington, was found dead near his home in Pike County yesterday. A coroner's jury was called and the verdict ruled accidental death from inhaling gasoline fumes. The youth inhaled the fumes from the gas tank of a truck.

He is survived by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Adams, two brothers, Ralph and Louis Adams, his sister, Bonnie Adams of Antoine; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Claud Tomlin of Eugene, Okla. and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Adams of Dexter, Kansas.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete and will be announced by Herndon - Cornelius Funeral Service of Hope.

Body Found and Autopsy Planned

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An autopsy was to be performed today on the body of Norma Bullard, about 30, of Little Rock, which was found floating Sunday in Spring Lake in eastern Saline County.

The woman's nude body was discovered by two Little Rock women. Sheriff Rogle Hester said Sunday the body bore no marks and the woman appeared drowned. But an autopsy was ordered to determine the exact cause of death.

Two companions of the dead woman, who said they had been swimming with her, identified the body. Their names were withheld.

Earlier Sunday, a missing persons report was filed by the Bullard woman's landlady.

All Around Town

By The Star Staff

A drag race involving four automobiles ended abruptly early Sunday when two cars collided and were almost totally demolished, one passenger was hurt painfully, another sustained minor injuries and four drivers were arrested by Arkansas State Police and the Sheriff's Department.

The drag race, which was held on a newly paved road in this area, was a private affair and if you'll look closely you will find that every paved road in this area has a drag strip marked off.

Police have a rough time breaking up this childish racing... often the cars are so souped up that official cars can't catch up and the drivers run through roadblocks... the drivers apparently have little regard of their lives or the lives of others... this is evident by the fact that four cars were dragging on a two lane road... an oncoming car wouldn't stand a chance to escape... we would suggest parents have a talk with their sons and point out the folly of courting disaster and tragedy in such a manner... and if parents wonder about the condition of their autos at times simply go to a local drive-in and observe only a few minutes... some will be surprised to learn their little "darling" is merely a demon at the wheel... drag racing on public roads is hard to stop but parents can do much to put an end to such silly practice by making sure their son or daughter isn't a part of it... and believe me, police would welcome a little help.

First Baptist Church just ended a very successful revival meeting featuring young Ouachita Baptist College students... an estimated 2,500 or more attended the eight-day meeting.

Clerk Dick Turnage reminds that even though a person is ill he or she can vote in tomorrow's election... a relative can pick up a ballot at the Clerk's office, have the sick person mark it and return the ballot... if you have no way of getting a ballot, contact Mr. Turnage and he will bring one out to you.

Star's Biennial Election Party to Be Held Tuesday Night in S. Walnut Street

Just as it has for the last 32 years Hope Star will bring state and district and local results in the Democratic preferential primary to the public with an Election Party in front of the newspaper building on S. Walnut St. Tuesday night, July 31.

The Election Party will begin about 7:45, with results projected on a big screen to be erected on First National Bank's parking lot across the street from The Star Building. Individual precinct returns will be given on Hempstead, and summaries on state and district races.

Election officials throughout the county are asked to get their complete returns to County Clerk Dick Turnage at the courthouse as soon as the count is finished.

Says Filibuster May Make Lag in Space Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators backing the administration's communications satellite bill argued today that unless opponents abandon their filibuster against it, the United States could lose the race for supremacy in space.

Earlier during the Senate session, Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said a powerful unionist has demanded a payoff as the price for settlement of a strike now holding up work on 11 nuclear submarines.

He made the charges in asking permission for his Senate Investigations subcommittee to start hearings. Subcommittees have been barred from meeting during the current filibuster.

Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., chairman of the Senate Space Committee, said there is danger that the advance made by the achievements of Telstar could be frittered away by obstructionism and dilatory tactics in the Senate.

Senator Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Commerce Committee, told the Senate that unless the United States arrives at a legislative policy on space communication, it will be left unprepared for the extraordinary radio conference to be held by the International Telecommunications Union in the fall of 1963.

"Unless we pass a bill, we will have no standing in this meeting," Magnuson said. "We are going to sit in this meeting out in left field."

Since last Thursday, critics of the legislation to create a privately owned, government regulated corporation to launch and own communications satellites have engaged in filibuster tactics to keep the bill from even coming before the Senate.

The filibusterers advocate government ownership of satellite communications systems. Their leaders are Democrats who call themselves liberals. Noting this, Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said that if the Senate doesn't act this session, the failure might have serious political effects on the Democratic party in the fall elections.

Symington said Democrats would be blamed for lack of action on a vital issue.

Kerr said senators must not forget there is a race going on between this country and the Soviet Union for supremacy in space and that the United States must not lose the advantage it obtained by putting Telstar into orbit.

Mountain Climbers to Descend

GRAND TETON NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — Storm-battered mountain climbers from four Eastern states made ready today to descend from Grand Teton Peak on which one of their comrades perished.

Stephen Smith, 21, of Holden, Mass., died of exposure when a snowstorm hit the group of 10 climbers near the top of the 13,766-foot peak in northwestern Wyoming.

Park Rangers found Smith's body Sunday.

Two other climbers, John Fenniman of West Hartford, Conn., and Lester Germer of Millington, N.J., were flown off the peak by helicopter. They were taken to a hospital at Jackson for treatment of exposure and frostbite.

The other seven climbers remained overnight at a campsite above Garnet Canyon before starting the final descent of 1,000 feet to waiting horses.

The easterners began their climb Thursday. That same day, a howling storm struck the upper slopes. Smith was one of three climbers who left the group in an attempt to find a way out of the storm.

Dr. John R. Walker of St. John's Hospital at Jackson said the three "tried to make it out Friday, but couldn't."

Dr. Walker said the men flown from the peak seemed in reasonably good condition.

The climbers are all members of the Appalachian Mountain Club which has 70 members in Wyoming for its annual camp.

Space Agency Uses Star's Balloon Pix

Hope Star's photograph of the Stratoscope II Project balloon on the local airport, published July 3, will be used in technical and publicity releases by the space agency's major contractor.

"The Star received a letter dated July 20 from Allen Long, public relations officer for Vetro Laboratories, 14000 Georgia Avenue, Silver Springs, Md. (a suburb of Washington), which read in part: 'Our Stratoscope II Project men brought back with them copies of the July 3 edition of the Hope Star. I was pleased with the write-up your paper gave the Stratoscope II Evaluation Flight. The story was beautifully handled, I thought, especially in view of the fact that the flight was not 100% successful.'"

"The five-column photograph was very appealing. I wonder if we could get a copy of this picture to use in connection with the technical and publicity details of the Stratoscope II Project? One of our fellows recalls that this may have been a Polaroid shot. If so, we would be willing to duplicate the original, if you will lend it to us for this purpose."

The story on the balloon was written by Managing Editor Paul H. Jones. While two of the items in the four-item pictorial layout were made with Polaroid camera, by Circulation Manager C. M. (Pod) Rogers, Jr., the five-column feature picture of the balloon and the three column photo copy of the official graph of the project were made on film by Editor A. H. Washburn.

Acknowledging receipt of the $10 original of the balloon picture Mr. Long of Vetro Laboratories paid The Star this compliment under date of July 26:

"We will be happy to give credit to the Hope (Ark.) Star. 'Thanks especially for the photographic details related to this picture. As an amateur photographer I especially appreciated reading them. I am sure also that our photographic department will be interested.'"

"Although the scene was essentially exciting, you deserve a great deal of credit. The framing of the payload by the balloon and its inflation tubes has been particularly commented upon here by a couple of people I know who are kicking themselves in the seat of their pants for not taking this picture from the same point of view."

Washburn said the photograph was made with The Star's Schneider 65mm. 100-degree wide-angle lens, with K-2 medium - yellow filter, 1/125th second at f-29, on Eastman's Royal Pan film. It was the combination of the wide-angle lens and the filter which gave the striking contrast of the airport's white concrete against a darkened sky, the editor said.

Washburn made two negatives in quick succession, sending one by bus to the Associated Press Wirephoto head at Little Rock, permitting the picture to be published in three-column format in the morning papers ahead of The Star, which made a five-column plate for our evening edition that followed the a.m.s.

Witching Hour Approaches for Six Candidates

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The camps of Gov. Orval E. Faubus and Sid McMath got together on one thing on this election eve — each forecast a total vote of 400,000 in Tuesday's Democratic primary.

The vote estimates ranged downward to the 375,000 forecast by Dave Glover, chief deputy secretary of state. All of the estimates fell below the 407,183 votes cast in the 1960 primary.

McMath is one of five candidates opposing Faubus' fifth term bid. Arnold Sikke, Faubus' executive secretary, issued the forecast for the Faubus headquarters. McMath's guess was offered by Henry Woods, McMath's law partner.

Claude Carpenter, co-ordinator of Rep. Dale Alford's campaign, predicted 380,000 to 385,000 votes and George Lyford, one of Vernon Whitten's campaign managers, forecast 384,000.

An Associated Press spot check of absentee voting in 20 counties indicated the turnout will be about the same as in 1960.

Absentee voting was heavy in some counties, light in others and average in most.

Faubus got 238,997 of the votes cast in 1960. His four opponents received a combined total of 163,186.

All candidates except Alford worked behind the scenes Sunday. Alford held an open house at his headquarters.

For the main, Sunday was spent recharging batteries for the last, long pull—today's campaign grind. All but two of the hopefuls, Vernon Whitten and David Cox, have television time bought for tonight.

During the day, former Gov. Sid McMath and Alford were to visit shopping centers and factories in the Little Rock area. Kenneth Coffelt was in Sheridan, Arkadelphia, Malvern and Benton.

Whitten made Columbia and Union counties for handshaking stops today, busstendas for Faubus and Cox were not available.

In a flurry of activity Saturday night Faubus compared his administration to that of McMath. Alford changed the name of his campaign handwagon to "Victory Wagon" and Coffelt challenged Mc-

Four Charged With Drag Racing

Following a collision on Highway 4, near Hope City limits early Sunday morning, Deputy Sheriff Herbert Griffin and State Police Sgt. Guy Downing arrested four local residents and charged them with drag racing on a public highway. They will appear in municipal court in early August.

Arrested were Kendall Yocom, Richard Neal, Jack Jackson and Kenny Atkins Jr.

Paul Cobb, a passenger in the Yocom car sustained a head injury which required seven stitches to close. Yocom suffered cuts on his face, arm and knee injury.

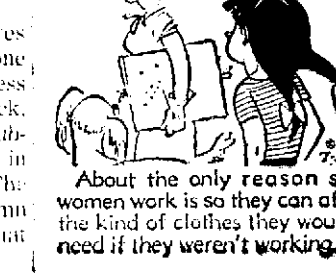

The others escaped injury, including Charlotte Johnson, riding in the Neal car and Floyd Nations riding with Atkins. Deputy Griffin gave this account:

"We were notified that four cars were drag racing. When I arrived at the Shover Springs and Highway 4 junction I saw four cars coming toward Hope at a high rate of speed.

"I pulled to the side of the road turned on my red warning light and tried to flag them down with a red blinker flashlight. They didn't stop.

"Some 150 feet after passing me the Yocom auto plunged into the rear end of the Neal car. Both cars took to the ditch on opposite sides of the road and both vehicles were practically demolished.

"The other two cars stopped a short distance down the road. With the assistance of State Police Sgt. Guy Downing the four were arrested," the Deputy Sheriff said.

Candidate Asks Probe in Pulaski

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Winston
G. Chandler of Little Rock, a candidiate for the U. S. Senate, has asked for a Grand Jury investiga-

Democrats Boosted by Vote in La.

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The
Kennedy administration received
a political boost in the Deep South
when Louisiana Democrats re-
nominated one of the President's
most loyal backers and defeated
a rash of strongly conservative
candidates.

The more conservative candidates were beaten in every key race in Saturday's Democratic primary.

Kennedy backers were pleased
most by the resounding triumph
secured in the 2nd District by Rep.
Hale Boggs, House Democratic
whip.

Boggs was marked for political extinction by conservatives after
he supported Kennedy's successful campaign last year to increase the size of the House Rules Committee. But he easily defeated
three opponents, piling up 64 per cent of the vote in a district
which includes uptown New Orleans and four outlying parishes
(counties).

Another aspect pleasing to Washington was that 25 East
Carroll Parish Negroes became
the first of their race to vote in that northeast Louisiana area
since at least 1922.

Sen. Russell Long, Louisiana's
junior senator, won re-nomination
to his third full six-year term by
a 4-to-1 margin over Phil St.
Amant, a retired Army lieutenant colonel. St. Amant, an all-out
conservative, called the long's
voting record "socialistic."

The senator's cousin, Gillis
Long, 39, won the 8th District
House seat from Rep. Harold McSweeney, 36, a conservative who has generally opposed the administration.

Long was making his first bid
for elective office in the political heartland of his famous family.
Boggs and both Longs will have
GOP opposition in the Nov. 6
general election.

Boggs will go against another
all-out conservative, David Trean-Green joined the Republican party
this year after resigning as head of the Louisiana States Rights Party, which backed a slate of unpledged electors in the 1960

commodities and supplies and contended bids were not taken as they should have been.

Unemployment in State Up

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Employment Security Division said Saturday unemployment in Arkansas at mid-June was estimated at 42,100 persons.

This is a rise of 0.4 per cent from the mid-May level. The ESD said, but lower than the 54,100
figure of the same period a year ago. The ESD said unemployment at mid-June this year was 5.4 per cent and at mid-June a year ago,
seven per cent.

The June non-farm payroll employment figure was estimated at $8,000, up 10,200 from a year ago.

Party Lines Forgotten for Tuesday

By J.C. TILLMAN

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A
sampling of county Democratic committee actions indicates that nearly all Arkansans will be assured a vote in the primary Tuesday without fear of challenge.

Each of the sampled counties has chosen to ignore the state Democratic Central Committee resolution that only those persons who voted for a Democratic candidate two years ago may vote in the party primary this year.

The ruling of the committee became a political football as soon as it was dropped onto the gubernatorial gridiron.

Blame for it has been laid alternately at the feet of incumbent Gov. Orval E. Faubus and Sen. J. William Fulbright, both seeking reelection. Both deny political complaints that the ruling was made solely to benefit them.

One candidate has charged that the various county committees don't dare enforce the ruling since a federal election is involved.
Others have issued warnings for voters not to be misled or deterred from balloting through fear of being challenged.

It has been pointed out that as long as the two-party system remains virtually non-existent at the primary level in the state, voters heaving to party lines would have no say in the selection of many local officials.

While the candidates made political hay over the ruling, the county Democratic committees have taken little or no action on it.

One of the reasons given for the lack of action is the near-impossibility of enforcement. Since there is no party demarcation on poll tax receipts there is no way to tell whether a voter is a Republican or Democrat.

Both critics and supporters of the ruling have said the success of challenges would hinge on the honor of the voter.

In Columbia County, where an estimated 50 per cent of the voters did not ballot for Democratic candidates in the last general election, the committee has issued a statement saying no voter will be challenged Tuesday.

In Jefferson County, no official action has been taken, but the unofficial word is that the primary will be conducted in the same manner this year as in previous years.

Garland Brewster Jr., chairman of the county committee, has said he hopes the general assembly approved legislation requiring voters to give a party preference for recording on the poll tax receipt at the time the tax is paid.

W. H. Arnold Jr., chairman of the Miller County Democratic Committee says his group has taken no action on the ruling. A committee member said anyone with a valid poll tax can vote in the primary.

Jacob L. King, chairman of the Garland County Committee, said,
"In the past we have left it up to the election judges and clerks to decide eligibility of voters.
We've had no trouble thus far and do not anticipate any." At its July meeting the committee took no action on the ruling.

Robert Mason, chairman of the Union county committee, says there "will be no interrogation of voters during the forthcoming Democratic primaries to ascertain how they voted at any previous election."

Mason said there were many good citizens of Union County who have been lifelong Democrats who,
in 1960, did not support all the Democratic nominees for reasons they deemed sufficient. It would be neither wise nor just to bar
these people from the Democratic party.

In Washington County, committee members said enforcement of the rule would be up to the judges and clerks at the polls. Pat Humphreys, chairman, said "I don't think they're going to do any more in Washington than they have in the past."

Conway County voted 24 to 7 to ignore the ruling.

Arkansas County took no action on it after a round of discussions on the difficulties of questioning voters on party allegiance.

Crittenden County officials voted unanimously to allow members of any party to participate in the Tuesday election.

The committee said there was nothing new or revolutionary about the rules. It passed a resolution stating in part, "without special action to relax them (the rules) in recent years, one of the present candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor would not even be eligible to vote in the primaries, much less have his name on the ballot." They did elaborate.

The Pope County committee voted not to challenge voters.

The Jackson County committee voted unanimously to have copies of the state resolution printed and distributed to the polling places.

The committee said the resolution "espouses the cause of the Democratic party. It does not in any way espouse the cause of any particular candidate, whether for governor, senator or township race."

But the committee did not direct judges and clerks to challenge voters and members said they doubted the state resolution would have much effect on balloting.

Blames Track for Railway Accident

STEELTON, Pa. (AP)—A Pennsylvania Railroad official says the derailment of a baseball special in which 19 persons were killed and 100 injured Saturday was apparently the result of "track being out of alignment."

"But a definite cause cannot be assigned until a thorough investigation has been completed," James F. Newell, the Pennsylvania's vice president in charge of operations, said Sunday.

The Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission joined the railroad in the investigation of the derailment, and the Interstate Commerce Commission was prepared to move into the probe.

Newell's statement concerning the track alignment was based on first-hand reports given by Howard C. Kohout, the railroad's regional manager in Philadelphia.
Kohout directed the salvage and repair crews that worked throughout Saturday night to repair the 1,500 feet of track.

With its main line back in service, the railroad began preparations to hoist the three dead cars which tumbled down an embankment into the shallow waters of the Susquehanna River.

Another railroad spokesman said track was being repaired last week in the area of the derailment.

The wreck was the nation's worst rail disaster since Sept. 15, 1958, when 48 persons died in a train that plunged from an open drawbridge into Newark Bay at Bayonne, N.J.

The baseball special, carrying fans to a National League game in Philadelphia left nearby Harrisburg—where all passengers boarded—at 5 p.m.

It was rolling along about 70
miles an hour, railroad officials said, when the derailment occurred next to the Bethlehem Steel Co. plant in this central Pennsylvania steel town.

Engineer J. F. Shue of Royalton, Pa., told railroad officials he was doing between 56 and 70 miles per hour. Officials said the speed limit over the straight stretch is 75 mph.

Railroad officials said the stretch of track at Steelton was used by 40 or 50 trains a day.
Just an hour before the derailment, officials said, a mail train passed over the same track.

After tumbling down an angled 40-foot embankment, two of the shattered cars of the nine-car coach train came to rest on their

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—
The 1962 Arlington Amateur Golf Championship was won Sunday
by M.C. (Sonny) Methvin of Little to gain the finals.

A MESSAGE TO MY FELLOW ARKANSANS

When you elected me to represent you in the United States Senate I was—and am today—deeply appreciative. Serving Arkansas as a member of an influential Congressional delegation that includes the chairman of four of the most powerful committees of the Congress is a rare honor, and I am proud to represent our state in the Nation's capital.

Working together in a mutually beneficial partnership with the National government, our state with its powerful Congressional delegation has made great progress; and Arkansas' economy is better balanced now than at any time in our history. Proof of this is the fact that the State's per capita income has increased more than 300% since you first elected me to Congress.

The energy and resourcefulness of our people is the principal reason for such progress, and there is every reason to believe that with your continued support and cooperation we can insure an era of widespread industrial and agricultural growth and of unprecedented prosperity for Arkansans.

Would Keep State Guard Strength

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Sen. J.
William Fulbright sought assurance Saturday from the Secretary of the Army and the chief of the National Guard Bureau that Arkansas' National Guard strength would not be cut.

Fulbright said he sent a telegram to Cyrus Vance, Army secretary, and D. W. McGowan, chief of the National Guard Bureau, saying he had heard reports that substantial cuts were contemplated
in Guard strength.

The senator requested assurance that the units would not be eliminated.

"Arkansas Guard units have served well in the defense of our country and I strongly urge they be maintained during this critical period in our nation's history," Fulbright wrote.

Copies of the message were sent to Arkansas Guard units.

A third car, its roof shredded, remained upright in about three feet of water.

The three cars that tumbled into the river were the last three cars of the train and were the only cars occupied. Two empty coaches also left the rails but remained upright. The two, along with three more up front, would have been filled by fans boarding the train at Lancaster and Coatesville.

The death toll might have been higher except that the broad stream is extremely low because of an 11-week drought.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The
Kennedy administration received
a political boost in the Deep South
when Louisiana Democrats re-
nominated one of the President's
most loyal backers and defeated
a rash of strongly conservative
candidates.

The more conservative candidates were beaten in every key
race in Saturday's Democratic
primary.

Kennedy backers were pleased
most by the resounding triumph
secured in the 2nd District by Rep.
Hale Boggs, House Democratic
whip.

Boggs was marked for political extinction by conservatives after
he supported Kennedy's successful campaign last year to increase
the size of the House Rules Committee. But he easily defeated
three opponents, piling up 64 per cent of the vote in a district
which includes uptown New Orleans and four outlying parishes
(counties).

Another aspect pleasing to Washington was that 25 East
Carroll Parish Negroes became
the first of their race to vote in
that northeast Louisiana area
since at least 1922.

Sen. Russell Long, Louisiana's
junior senator, won re-nomination
to his third full six-year term by
a 4-to-1 margin over Phil St.
Amant, a retired Army lieutenant
colonel. St. Amant, an all-out
conservative, called the long's
voting record "socialistic."

The senator's cousin, Gillis
Long, 39, won the 8th District
House seat from Rep. Harold McSweeney, 36, a conservative who
has generally opposed the administration.

Long was making his first bid
for elective office in the political
heartland of his famous family.
Boggs and both Longs will have
GOP opposition in the Nov. 6
general election.

Boggs will go against another

Many Years of Talking Is Fruitless

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—After 15 years of talking, balking and squawking about disarmament, the result for the United States and Russia is still hash.

The nations seem to think this prolonged, fruitless and often tortured discussion is better than no discussion on the theory that so long as they're talking they're not fighting.

The trouble is that other events now unforeseen could put a critical end to this international gabfests because, like the argument which began in a barroom and ended in a hospital, one thing led to another.

President Kennedy meets Friday with top advisers to see whether this country could soften its terms for a nuclear test ban treaty with Russia because it's a little easier now to detect a nuclear blast than it used to be.

Unless there's some agreement the end of testing is not in sight. Last fall the Russians broke a voluntary test ban and resumed testing. Not to be outdone, the United States some weeks ago resumed testing and is still at it. Now the Russians say they must have some more tests.

This week at Geneva Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko talked again about a Berlin settlement and again wound up with nothing to show except a repetition of their unending positions.

Yet there seems to be a feeling in the West that the Russians may soon create a new crisis over the German city which they literally split in half last August with a wall between East and West Berlin.

The U.S. asked people of West Berlin how they felt about it and told them to write Khrushchev.

This isn't likely to influence the Russian but it is one more part of the long Berlin dialogue, a word, by the way, which is currently very popular in Washington and covers discussions on all kinds of things.

And while all this was going on there was another meeting in Geneva: This was the 17-nation disarmament conference, just as unproductive as anything else because the disputes which never get settled revolve around this: Inspection or no inspection.

The big nations which have been inhabiting the same planet for generations — and probably just because they have — don't seem to be getting any closer.

DOROTHY DIX

She Wants to Be Good

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: My problem is sex. Why should this, the most dominant and natural force in life be considered shameful? I am 20 years old and ever since I can remember have been conscious of it around me as were my sisters and brothers. Our house was small. We could hear our father and mother making love at night. We read scrawls on walls and billboards before we were old enough to understand them.

The neighborhood kids enlightened us in a shabby way. We helped our dogs and cats when they had puppies and kittens and this seemed right and fine for neither they nor we were ashamed. Our father was unfaithful to Mama yet strict as could be with us. I hated him. She was just the opposite: gentle, yielding and anxious to keep peace in the family. If she could have found words to explain things, my life might have been different. She just couldn't talk about things like sex. Yet, it was the big issue in our family.

Once through high school I left home, got a job and took an apartment with a girl friend. I dated a different boy every night. The inevitable happened. I had only myself to blame. My priest suggested the Florence Crittenton Home. The four months I spent there were the most pleasant of my life. After much heart-searching, I gave my baby up for adoption. Mom and an older brother and sister are the only ones in our family who know.

I've gone back to my job as assistant manager of a specialty shop which pays well and offers a chance for promotion. But the same old wild, reckless crowd surrounds me. They are kind, generous and treat me like I am somebody. I can't say no to them. Yet I don't want to be bad. More than anything else in this world I want to be good. Help me! — Weak as Water

Dear Weak: Stealing ourselves to say no is imperative in life if we are ever to develop character. Say no is imperative in life if we are ever to develop character. Until you do, you will always be in trouble. Use the same technique in your personal life that you do in business.

Take charge of yourself! Work toward that promotion at the store. Sign up for a course in management at the local night school. Make advancement of your career and not questionable pleasure, the reason for living. With new interests will come more worthwhile friends. Sex is only shameful when misused. If not an expression of deep emotion it becomes distorted and, once this happens, what should be sublimely natural, becomes — as in your case, a scourge. But it's never too late to start afresh. Thank God that the Victorian hypocrisy of which your parents were victims, is passing.

Dear Helen: My husband has turned into a cave man since our marriage last year. Before, I led a civilized life, enjoyed friends of my choosing and being blessed with parents who trusted me, came and went without question.

Six Deaths in Arkansas on Sunday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
SIX DEATHS IN Arkansas Sunday swelled the total of violent deaths during the week ended last midnight to 19, four more than the previous week.

Carl Steven Pittman, 67, of Wynne died in a Memphis hospital Sunday three hours after being struck by a car driven by Carl Allen of Vanndale on state Highway 1, about one mile north of Wynne.

C. F. Robinson, 38, of Marked Tree, was fatally wounded by a single shot from a .22 caliber pistol during an argument at a Negro restaurant in Marked Tree. Officers held his half-brother, Eugene Brown, 35, on an open charge.

John Prince, about 50, was struck by a Missouri Pacific freight train as he walked along the tracks near his home, four miles north of Corning.

Richard Hoyt, 14, of the St. Elizabeth community near Morrilton, drowned while swimming in a

ing. Now, my husband insists I give up all my friends—including a girl friend who was like a sister. He also makes me account for each minute of my day. Every Saturday night he sallies forth for a get-together with friends while I sit at home with baby. Is this married life? —Fed Up.

Dear Fed Up: Married life is what you make it. We women put up with a lot of foolishness from our husbands because we love them. But there are times when a wife should speak out. If she's right her husband will subside without a murmur. In your case you are right. Tell your husband a happy marriage is founded upon mutual trust and co-operation. Therefore, he must recognize your right, just as you recognize his, to an occasional evening with friends. This may involve either taking baby with you, or inviting friends to your home but, no matter what, carry your point. Otherwise, resign yourself to a life of marital servitude.

Dear Helen: I am 13 years old. A boy asked me to go steady. I said yes but was scared to tell my folks 'cause when I mentioned it my mother lectured me. All it boiled down to was "You're too young." Is 13 too young to feel real love? The love this boy and I have for each other seems very real to us. —Teen-ager.

Dear Teen-ager: Adult love between a boy and girl is rare save in warm countries where young people mature early. In the temperate zone where we live it's more apt to be puppy love or, to be more clinical, the stirrings of the biological urge. Your mother is right. Real though your love for this boy may seem, going steady is not for the 13-year-old girl who wants to become a normal, happy and well-adjusted young woman.

Perhaps the Biggest Misfit in America's Fitness Fad Is Tired Office Worker

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Probably the biggest misfit in America's new physical fitness campaign is the tired office worker.

Pallid-faced and slack-chested, he drops down his desk like a sack of wet laundry home from the family clothesline. He barely has the strength to lather back and forth in the water cooler half a dozen times a day.

There are those who think the answer to the rehabilitation of the tired business employee is to provide him with a lot more fresh air and exercise. Frankly, I think he would be more likely to kill his wife than himself.

It isn't more exercise the ordinary office worker needs. He needs more than enough exercise now simply by trying to avoid doing his work. What he really needs is more rest — on company time.

The answer, as I see it, is to revive the old-fashioned siesta — right in the office.

Why do American housewives so consistently outlive their husbands? A partial explanation probably is that they are never far from a sofa while performing their household chores. Whenever they feel a bit weary, they simply lie down and take a nap until the feeling goes away. Then they rise refreshed.

Now let's take the ordinary male office employee. He has probably stayed up to watch the midnight movie on television and eaten an ice cream cone.

There is no time for a hearty breakfast. Red-eyed from lack of sleep he races to the office and snatches on hot coffee and a soda cracker.

By noon he is all worn out. Then he goes out for lunch and hungrily gulps down a meat that would stun a python.

When he stumbles back into the office, he can hardly keep his eyes open. Numb with fatigue, he toys restlessly at the papers on his desk all afternoon getting little or no work done.

What the average office needs is to fill its locker room with lockers. After returning from lunch, each worn-out employee would stretch out on a couch and, lulled by soft music, grab a good solid hour of shut-eye.

When he got up, restored in mind and body, he would be able to get twice as much work done in the remainder of the afternoon as

I will personally appreciate your voting to re-elect Judge George Rose Smith for Supreme Court Justice and urging others to do so.

Math and Alford to say publicly whether either one would support the other in a runoff against Faubus. McMath, in a television talk, charged abuses in handling of the state's welfare program.

Whitten, in his final scheduled television appearance repeated his contention that he is the only one who has grasped the real issues of the campaign and said he is the only candidate who can beat the governor in a runoff. Cox showed up at a Jonesboro gathering where Faubus spoke. He sat about 10 feet from the governor during his entire talk but did not attract Faubus' attention.

He said accusations of Faubus that he is backed by the Women's Emergency Committee, a group formed following the 1957 Little Rock integration crisis, and by the segregationists Capital Citizens Council were untrue.

Earlier in a news conference Sunday, Alford charged that the governor was, "in the dictatorial fashion of boss rule attempting to pre-empt the duties of a federal official." Alford said Faubus was trying to control the appointment of postmasters and rural mail carriers in the Fifth Congressional District.

McMath stayed on television 90 minutes Saturday night, answering 60 questions sent to him by viewers. Questions ranged from who paid for the candidate's campaign film to points about the highway program during his administration.

McMath said if elected he would name a new Public Service Commission and ask it to study the rate structure of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., to see if it were not exorbitant. He also said he would attempt to cut excess state employment and to operate the University of Arkansas medical center at full capacity.

Coffelt spoke at El Dorado and Magnolia. He told his audience, "You know I am the only candidate who can beat the governor in a runoff." Coffelt said at Magnolia that Faubus would be

A Statement From Judge George Rose Smith

In a letter to my University friends, I mistakenly stated that my opponent did not graduate from the University of Arkansas. This statement was based on his biographical information in Martindale-Hubbell legal directory, which does not reflect that he ever attended that school, although it does show attendance at an out-of-state institution.

Incidentally, this standard legal directory does not indicate that my opponent is a graduate of any law school, and does not give him a rating for legal ability or a general recommendation.

Maxwell Prize Example of Sunday Hitter

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

It is a good idea to get out of the way of Sunday drivers. The same goes for Sunday hitters.

Charlie Maxwell of the Chicago White Sox is a prize example of a Sunday hitter, and the New York Yankee pitchers forgot to get out of his way again.

Maxwell hammered three homers in a doubleheader Sunday as the White Sox ended a five-game Yankee winning streak in the second game for a split with the league leaders.

The Yankees won the first game 7-4, despite a three-run Maxwell homer. The White Sox took the second 6-2.

Both of the other doubleheaders in the American League were divided, too.

The second-place Los Angeles Angels dropped the first game to the Detroit Tigers, 7-4 and won the second 12-5 to remain five games back of the Yankees and a half-game in front of the Minnesota Twins.

The Twins lost the opener to Cleveland, 3-2, but won the nightcap, 7-5, in 11 innings.

Kansas City salvaged the last of a four-game set with Baltimore 7-3, and the Boston Red Sox beat Washington 4-2.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers stretched their lead to four games by beating the San Francisco Giants for the third straight time, 11-1. Cincinnati swept Milwaukee, 8-6 and 2-1 and St. Louis trimmed the New York Mets twice, 6-5 and 5-1. Chicago beat Houston 4-2 in the first game with the Colts winning the second 3-1. Philadelphia beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-1.

Juan Pizarro of the White Sox was knocked out in the first inning of the opener with the Yankees, to take the loss, but he relieved Mike Joyce, Chico bonus pitcher made his first start, in the fifth inning Sox.

Kroll Takes Canadian Open Meet

MONTREAL (AP)—It was six years between victories for veteran golfer Ted Kroll, and it took a 35-foot putt and a caddy with lots of friends to help end the long drought.

Kroll captured the $30,000 Canadian Open with a blistering 32 on the back nine for a final round two under-par 70 Sunday. That gave him a 72-hole total of 278, two strokes better than Charlie Sifford.

It was Kroll's first tournament victory since the Tam O'Shanter World championship at Chicago in 1956.

The 42-year-old Fort Lauderdale, Fla., veteran started the third round tied with Sifford, 39-year-old cigar-smoking Los Angeles pro who was five times U.S. Negro champion.

Kroll dropped three strokes to Sifford on the first nine. Kroll battled back to even with Sifford, who was playing in the threesome in front, by the 14th hole.

"Then on the 15th I hit a drive and a four iron, and my caddy told me Charlie had bogied the hole. So I thought I could sneak one in."

Kroll knocked in a 35 foot putt for a birdie and the two-stroke lead he carried in.

"I don't know how my caddy knew what Charlie was doing—he must be psychic," Kroll said.

Actually, Kroll's caddy—Russell Witt, 17 — had friends shutting back and forth to keep tabs on Sifford and run the results back to him. He fed the information to Kroll when he felt it was timely.

The victory was worth $4,300 to Kroll.

Sifford won $3,000, for his 280 total. He finished with a 72.

Art Wall fired a final round 66, best of the tournament, to finish with 281 for $2,000 third-place money.

Bruce Crampton of Australia closed with a 7 for 282 and fourth place. U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus and Bob Shave Jr., of Willsoughby, Ohio, were tied at 284.

Relief pitcher Bill Dailey threw the ball away on a punt to allow the Twins to break the tie in the 11th inning of the second game.

No-hit pitcher Earl Wilson won his second straight for the Red Sox.

Drysdale Leads Dodgers to Clean Sweep

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Are the Los Angeles Dodgers primed to make a shambles of an old National League tradition—the down-to-the-wire pennant chase?

Fired again by the hitting of massive Frank Howard and behind another superlative pitching performance of whip-armed right-hander Don Drysdale, the Dodgers completed a three-game sweep over the San Francisco Giants Sunday, crushing their closest pursuers 11-1.

The romp increased the Dodgers' lead to four games — a whopping margin in a National League race at this stage of the season and the biggest edge the Dodgers have had in a pennant derby since their runaway year of 1955.

Elsewhere, Frank Robinson's key hitting led Cincinnati to a sweep over Milwaukee, 8-6 and 2-1, that carried the Reds into third place—but still 8½ games behind the Dodgers.

Philadelphia dealt Pittsburgh its eighth loss in nine games, 8-1, dropping the Pirates to fourth. St. Louis clipped New York twice 6-5 and 5-1, and Chicago split with Houston, the Cubs winning the first game 4-2 and the Colts taking the second 3-1.

In the American League, New York's front-running Yankees divided with Chicago, winning 7-4 and then losing 6-2. Detroit and Los Angeles divided a doubleheader, the Tigers scoring a 7-6 decision in the opener and the Angels powering their way to a 12-8 victory in the second game.

Minnesota also split with Cleveland, winning 7-5 in 11 innings after a 3-2 loss. Kansas City downed Baltimore 7-3 and Boston beat Washington 4-2.

The Dodgers, who've won 14 of 18 since regaining the lead three weeks ago, got off winging in the romp that gave them an 8-3 season mark against the Giants.

They sent 11 men to the plate in the first inning, rapping out seven hits, scoring six runs and knocking out southpaw Billy O'Dell in the process. Howard delivered the first two runs with a single, then singled in another in the second, banged his 20th homer in the seventh, and had another RBI single in the eighth.

Drysdale, 19-4, struck out five and again exhibited masterful control by not issuing a walk, making it 37 consecutive innings without allowing a base on balls.

Robinson smacked a pair of two-run homers in Cincinnati's opening game victory.

Joey Jay, 15-9, pitched a five-hitter in the second game and blanked Milwaukee until the eighth, when Tommie Aaron singled in the tying run after an intentional walk to his older brother, Hank.

It became untied in the last of the ninth on Robinson's second double and Marty Keough's single—and the Reds had won for the 12th time in their last 13 starts.

Hank Aaron also hit two homers in the opener, boosting his season total to 29.

Cal McLish threw a five-hitter and Tony Gonzalez led the offensive as the Phils mauled the floundering Pirates.

The Cardinals had their hands full against the last-place Mets before taking both games with late inning flurries.

The Cubs won their fourth straight in their opener, but the Houston Colts pulled out the second game with two unearned runs in the eighth inning.

Podres Gives Teammate Help Needed

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Los Angeles left-hander Johnny Podres, an 11th hour replacement for teammate Don Drysdale, and Minnesota right-hander Camilo Pascual were the opposing pitchers today in the 33rd All-Star game, second of the season between the National and American leagues.

A Wrigley Field crowd of between 38,000 and 40,000 was expected to be on hand, despite the weatherman's "partly cloudy with chances of showers" forecast.

The Nationals won 3-1 at Washington D.C. last July 31.

Starting time for the game, to be telecast and broadcast nationally by NBC, was set for 2 p.m. (EST). The Nationals ruled a 6 to 5 favorite.

Podres' starting nomination was a distinct surprise; the 29-year-old southpaw was placed on the squad only Saturday night as a late replacement for Drysdale, who pitched Sunday. Podres' 7-7 season record is drab compared to Drysdale's 19-4.

National League Manager Fred Hutchinson originally had named Warren Spahn, Milwaukee's 41-year-old left-hander, to start. But when Warren complained his elbow had tightened up following his victory over the New York Mets last Thursday, Hutch switched to Podres, who turned in a sparkling 3-1 triumph over San Francisco's Giants Friday night.

Podres in his previous All-Star appearance, pitched two scoreless innings in the second 1960 contest, allowing one hit, walking three and striking out one. He was not involved in the decision, a National League victory.

Pascual (13-6), the American League's biggest winner, defeated Cleveland Friday night, 2-1. The 28-year-old curve-ball artist pitched in two previous All-Star games. He hurled hitless ball through three innings in the second 1960 game but was tagged with the first game loss this year, yielding four hits and two runs in his three inning effort.

Manager Ralph Houk also made a couple of late changes on his American League squad. He added pitcher Ray Herbert of the Chicago White Sox and outfielder Al Kaline of Detroit in place of pitcher Ken McBride of Los Angeles and outfielder Jim Landis of Chicago.

McBride is plagued by a case of pleurisy in his back. He has an 11-3 record, Herbert, with a 10-6 record, is the White Sox leading pitcher.

Kaline recently returned to the Tiger lineup after a seven-week layoff with a shoulder separation. Landis is in a hitting slump.

Beach Grove and Osceola Advance

OSCEOLA, Ark. (AP)—Beach Grove and Osceola gained the semi-finals of the state semi-pro baseball tournament with victories Sunday over Monette and Newport, respectively.

Led by Charley Harris, who gave up five scattered hits while going four for five at bat, Beach Grove blanked the Monette nine 7-0.

The Osceola-Newport game, which ended with the score 11-3, was called at the end of seven innings because of an eight-run lead rule.

Osceola was paced by Bill Looney and Doug McMillin. Looney was four for five at bat while McMillin slugged a three-run homer.

Semi-final games will be played Friday and the championship Saturday.

Meany Wants Tax Cut for Little Man

WASHINGTON (AP)—AFL-CIO President George Meany, who advocates immediate tax cutting to help spur business recovery, testifies today before a congressional group studying the nation's economy.

Meany said last month he had written President Kennedy, urging a quick reduction in the lowest income tax bracket. Such a cut, Meany said then, would have a maximum effect on the economy.

The House Ways and Means Committee heard last week from business representatives and economists. The tax-writing group has sought to keep its proceedings under a tight lid, taking testimony behind closed doors and pledging the witnesses to secrecy.

The House group has emphasized that it is taking a broad look at the economy and is not studying possibilities of tax reductions.

Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., aligned himself Sunday with those who would go slow in considering an immediate tax cut.

Said Douglas: "At Bunker Hill, the commander of the American troops said 'Don't fire until you see the whites of their eyes.' I wouldn't fire in the form of a tax cut until we saw the whites of the eyes of the recession."

He said there is "no clear proof that we are going to have a recession and certainly we are not, at the moment, in a recession."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., persisted, meanwhile, in his advocacy of an immediate tax cut. The assistant Senate Democratic leader said in a statement the administration should not wait until there is a decline and unemployment starts to snowball. The President has said he will wait for reports on July business du-activity, due next month, before making his mind up on whether to press for an immediate tax re-

When Governor Faubus took office in January, 1955, the average monthly welfare grant for our old people was $33.86. Under Governor Faubus this average monthly welfare grant for our old people has been increased to $56.57. Comparable increases have also been made in welfare grants for dependent children, the blind, and the permanently and totally disabled.

Governor Faubus is committed to a program of aid to these citizens to the fullest extent possible.

Vote for Governor Faubus on July 31, 1962.

U. S., World Economy Is Interlocked

EDITOR'S NOTE—Americans can't close the door anymore when it comes to the economy. In this, last of four articles on the present state of the economy, Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, looks at why American taxes, interest rates, deficits, tariffs even F. I. Knox — become more complicated problems every day.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—So complex and interlocked has become the American and world economies that if you step on John's toes today, it may be Bill who yells—or maybe Pierre or Hans.

Much of the world peers over Uncle Sam's shoulder as he tries to decide what to do about taxes, interest rates, Treasury deficits, inflation, American gold reserves, tariff and other relations with the Common Market, and even American wage scales, prices and profits.

Here are the latest figures on how various money matters stand as the big policy debate builds up steam:

The U. S. Treasury collected $81.4 billion, mostly in taxes on corporation and individual incomes in the fiscal year ended June 30. This was an increase of $3.7 billion from the previous fiscal year. Collections go up and down as business prospers or languishes, as personal incomes wax or wane. Even the increased collections this year weren't enough to meet expenditures of $87.7 billion.

The problem at midyear: Should a slow moving economy be perked up by tax cuts for business and individuals, even if this threatens a greater Treasury deficit than the $3.3 billion in the fiscal year just ended?

The size of the deficit, and how rates for short-term or long-term loans, and thus the flow of investment money to foreign shores and the amount of the gold reserves. Increased sales of U. S. securities tend to sop up some of the supply of investment money and to raise interest rates.

Rates paid to savers have risen this year. Lenders might like to raise charges to borrowers, but at midyear the demand for funds hadn't risen enough to sustain higher interest charges. Higher interest would affect business borrowers, installment plan borrowers, state and community projects, home buyers.

The Washington money managers have been trying to keep short-term rates high enough to discourage the flow of investment money to foreign shores, but long-term rates low enough to encourage growth of the domestic economy. It's a neat trick and the tax cut and greater deficit prospects won't help.

Although American exports cover imports with dollars to spare, they don't make up for the other outflow for foreign aid, military spending overseas, private investment abroad, and travel spending.

For four years the resulting deficit in our balance of payments averaged $3.4 billion a year, and the gold outflow that resulted averaged $1.4 billion a year. But by mid 1962 the deficit prospect had been cut to little more than a billion for the year, and the gold loss so far this year to $229 million.

The health of the U. S. economy as a whole is involved because it, like the size of the Treasury deficit, affects foreign thinking about the future value of the dollar. The specific question is whether to hold onto their dollar reserves or turn them in for U. S. gold.

Production to Jump at Glass Plant

By GEORGE F. BARTSCH
Associated Press Staff Writer

Bottles . . . jars . . . glass containers of all shapes and sizes . . . 30 every minute . . . 40 tons a day, seven days a week, 52 weeks a year, humming down conveyor belts and into cardboard boxes.

That's the way they're produced at the fully-automated Arkansas Glass Container Corp. at Jonesboro, a 6-year-old company that now grosses nearly $2 million a year.

And in short while, with the addition of a second furnace, production is expected to jump to 80 million tons a day.

J. T. White, the company's president, said ten new employees would be hired when the second furnace is installed.

Their duties will be similar to the 100 persons already employed — watching, checking each step in the operation and keeping the machines running.

They will bring the company's annual payroll to almost $400,000.

Here's the process they'll be watching:

Sand, lime, feldspar and soda ash are thoroughly mixed and fed into furnaces or "melting tanks."

From the melting tanks, the molten material passes into a feeder, which measures out the exact quantity needed to make a bottle or jar of the required size. If you want a bottle that weighs 12 ounces, your "gob" weighs 12 ounces.

The gobs are measured into forming machines, which utilize plungers and compressed air to blow the bottles.

When the glass is blown into it is then tempered by subjecting it to high temperatures which gradually are reduced during a period of from one to two hours.

Each step is delicate. Should speed, temperature or air pressure be off a fraction, the finished container will have one or more flaws. It then joins the five per cent that is sent back to the furnace each day.

Finally the containers are packed into cardboard cartons for delivery to food processing plants as near as Osceola or as far away as San Francisco.

White said most of the company's sales are made within a 400-mile radius of Jonesboro. Its largest markets in Arkansas are the Osceola Food Co., the Atkins Pickle Co. and the Rogers Vinegar Co.

White noted that the company is centrally located both for sales and the gathering of raw materials. The sand comes from Guion, the lime from near Batesville, the feldspar from North Carolina and the soda ash from Baton Rouge, La.

In 1956 the company took over the McSwain Little Giant Glass Co., a small operation that produced handblown bottles. It now manufactures a general line of glass food containers on a killing schedule.

Unless the unexpected happens, the plant closes down only three days each year — Christmas Eve, Christmas and Labor Day.

Strangely enough, the man who heads this organization had never had any experience in the glass field before he assumed the presidency.

White has spent about 38 of his 2 years in the rice industry. He was managing a rice mill at Jonesboro before he took over at the glass company.

When he began buying stock in the glass company, he intended to retire. He altered his plans when he was asked to take the presidency.

He also acts as chairman of the board and general manager of the plant.

As matter of fact, White said only seven of the company's employees have had previous experience in the glass business. The rest are local people trained by the company.

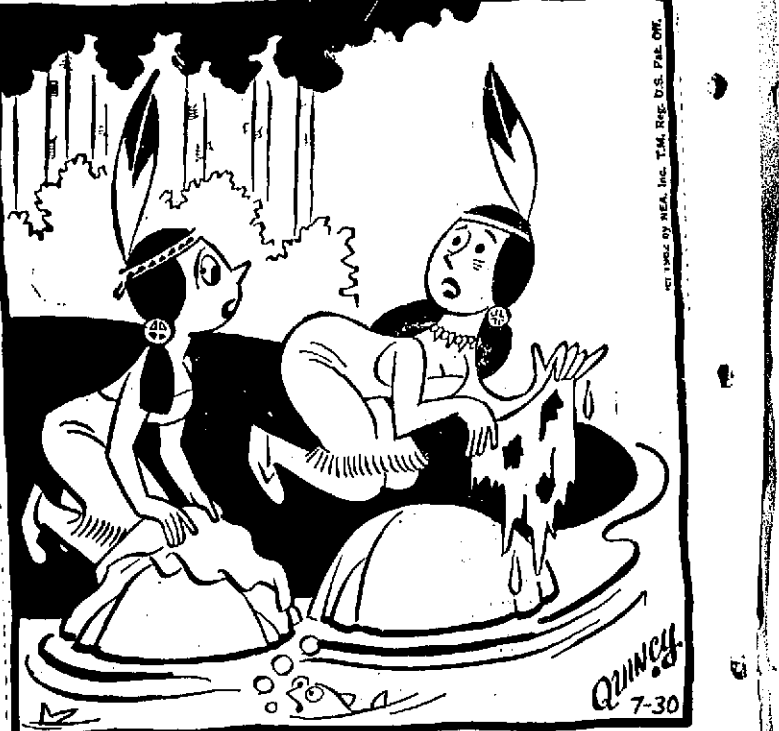

Experienced personnel or not, the company is prospering.

Last week White and the board of directors announced a regular quarterly dividend increase from 15 to 20 cents per share.

"We paid our first quarterly dividend of ten cents per share on Aug. 1, 1960," White said. "We haven't failed to pay a dividend in any quarter since that time."

Designer Returns to Old Days

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
Associated Press Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP)—Contourier Guy Laroche believes there is a great deal to be said about the good old days when grandma wore high button shoes, the piano wore a heavy fringe scarf, and a few radical ladies wore knee-length pants.

And he said it charmingly as models displayed his fall collection in his little showroom today.

High-heeled, ankle-high suede shoes buttoned up the side formed a whimsical accent to Laroche's culottes and even his more conservative costumes.

Those pants—narrower than the usual deep-pleated culotte—came in suede and even in mink-bordered brocade.

Slim quilted suede coats were worn over sheath dresses made of the same animal skin.

Shawls, the piano kind, served as hoods on coats and suits.

Laroche's general silhouette was

THE PICTURE
By RUTH ENGELKEN

Homesick! She was listing again like a sampan in gale. Marie Cabot pushed back a brown strand of hair that hung limp on her high forehead and raised ringed eyes from the supply list before her to the narrow window.

"If it's so nice to give instead of receive, give me that picture."

It was (three months later, the morning after the fire, before she saw the girl again. Running her foot listlessly over the charred debris that had been the orphanage, Marie felt the tears burn. "Thank God, the children had been saved, but nothing else remained.

At the tug on her arm, Marie turned. Through blurred eyes she saw Lin Wen Ha, a crooked smile lighting her thin face. Her extended hand held the picture.

"It is your gift to me," Lin Wen Ha said, with a trace of a sad smile. "Blessed to give. Blessed is gift. I keep it well. See?"

The End

Millionth Visitor

WASHINGTON (AP)—A startled school principal who at first thought "they weren't going to let me in" is the one millionth visitor to the White House in 1962.

William Nealy of Chester, Pa., was stopped at the visitors gate Thursday and presented with an autographed picture of President Kennedy.

She moaned and threw her head on her arm.

At length, she raised her eyes to the picture over her desk, "New England in Autumn." The neat, squared houses freshly painted, the sugar maples leafed in gold and crimson, and the towering spire of the white frame church quieted the gnaw within her.

"Take it with you, dear," her Mother had said when Marie was ready to leave. "That way you'll be home in the flick of an eye."

A scream from the hall stopped her contemplation. Lin Wen Ha again. By now, Marie knew that scream.

Choi Mi Ok, the native helper, entered, pulling the protesting girl by her reed-thin arm.

"Let me go!" Lin Wen Ha demanded, her pinched face twisted in a scowl of hate.

"She stole the hat," the native said, holding a loft a battered triangle of bamboo.

"You lie," Lin Wen Ha spat the words.

Marie waved her hand for silence.

"You may go, Choi Mi Ok," the missionary said wearily.

When the door closed, Marie turned to Lin Wen Ha. "I thought you weren't going to steal anymore," she said softly. "That's the third time this week."

"I want," said Lin Wen Ha. "When I want, I take. Like everybody else. They take from me. Why should I not take from them?"

"Because it isn't right," said Marie. "Just because others do things, doesn't make it right for you. It's wrong to steal. Haven't I told you this before?"

"You say it. You say many things. I not remember."

"Have you ever seen me steal?"

The child's black eyes flashed anger, as she clamped her mouth tight. How to explain to this orphaned waif who had existed by stealing on the streets that theft

A Lawyer's Duty

CANONS OF PROFESSIONAL ETHICS
ADOPTED BY THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

CANON 2. The Selection Of Judges

"It is the duty of the Bar to endeavor to prevent political considerations from outweighing judicial fitness in the selections of Judges . . . the aspiration of lawyers for judicial position should be governed by an impartial estimate of their ability to add honor to the office and not by a desire for the distinction the position may bring to themselves."
